Which article would you explore to learn more the invention of the “horseless carriage” and how it fits the theme of exploration, encounters, exchange?

AUTOMOBILE IS NOW NECESSITY

Has Established Itself as Quick, Clean Method of Transportation Everywhere.

BENEFIT TO CIVILIZATION

To Treat Motor as a Plaything is Big Mistake—Is Important Factor in All Spheres of Life—Commands Respect.

The automobile, as a method of quick, clean transportation, has established itself the world over.

It is true it was not considered such in the early days when its mechanical dependability had not been proved. But when dependability came, its position was made secure. Today the motorcar is an important factor in all spheres of life. It is a utility, a vital one, and is so recognized by those who have been introduced to its use, and who appreciate, to the fullest extent, its manifold advantages, and how helpless they would be if it were necessary to do without this modern convenience.

To treat the modern automobile lightly, as a plaything, is a mistake. True, it is ready for recreative purposes, but that is simply one method for which it may be employed.

Those who know most about accomplishment of the motorcar and the great changes the use of the automobile has made in this country hold it in deepest admiration and respect.

Motor Has Influence.

We all seem to agree that transportation is close to civilization. To achieve one, you must have the other. They go hand in hand. And it is not too much to say that the advent of the motorcar and its use during the last 12 years, particularly, has had a marked influence on the people of this wise. He saves his energy for his work, rather than using it in getting to his destination.

Does the automobile save life? It does. The use of motorcars by nearly 100 per cent of the physicians in this country is ample proof of the esteem in which it is held by this profession.

In every walk of life, in every endeavor, in every instance where time is a consideration, where energy is desired, the automobile looms large as the vehicle to be used. Ask the automobile owner and see what he says. Stop the next one you meet and put the question to him.

We are living in a remarkable age. In an age when so much is taken for granted. The marvelous seems to be commonplace for us in the midst of marvels. The automobile was introduced in such a period.

It may be that we are too close to its newness to appreciate its wonder. For it is a wonder. A truly great one. But, like many other things given to us in the last 25 years, we have accepted it without giving the necessary credit to its wonderful capabilities. But it is a certainty that future history will give to the automobile its proper place.

Automobile is Safe.

We need not worry. The automobile is safe. The automobile industry is secure. The automobile serves the people and as long as it does this efficiently, and there is a reason to believe that this efficiency, if anything, is going to increase, it is safe to say that there will be need for motorcars, and that the law of supply and demand will govern their manufacture and distribution.

But let us not forget this:

That the development of the automobile from a crude, mechanical affair—erratic and feeble in performance—to the powerful, smoothly running, efficient machine of today is a glowing tribute to the courage, determination and skill of those far-sighted pioneers who saw in the creation of their handiwork the birth of a utility which would some day become indispensable to industrial progress and national prosperity.

GOOD ROADS

PROSPERITY IN GOOD ROADS

Future Development of Country Must Begin With Improved Highways to Relieve Congestion.

There are today some 2,500,000 miles of rural roads in the United States. Of this amount perhaps 12 per cent could be classified as improved, while only about one-fourth of one per cent can be said to be suitable for the carriage of heavy-duty motortrucks. And in the face of this condition it can be said without chance of contradiction that the future development of the United States rests upon the roads.

The past few years have witnessed a tremendous turnover in transportation from the railway to the highway, says Roy D. Chapin, former chairman of the highways transport committee of the council of national defense. The congestion which prevailed during the war made necessary the commercial utilization of the highway to an extent thought impossible a scant few years ago.

The motortruck, little known before the war, sprang into prominence as a commercially practical form of transportation, and while the fighting has ceased the need for the motor truck remains with us, more insistent than ever before.

Within certain limitations the freight car of the highway is more efficient than the rail carrier, and because of it it may be taken as a permanent form of transportation and one destined to have a large influence on the movements of trade in the future.

The hour has struck when the fast-moving efficient motor vehicle of commerce must replace the horse and the costly terminal charges which prevail upon the short-haul branches of the rail lines. Already the motortruck has become a "feeder" to the railroad.

Outfits That Intrigue Motorists

If you have foresworn a motor tour for good reasons, do not allow yourself to stroll into shops or through the departments in big stores where motor togs are on display. Temptation lies there, along with the proper outfit for leather and the skirt portion of two or other heavy wool goods.

Leaving leather out of the reckoning, there are comfortable coats of tweed, covert cloth and heavy Jersey, and these, like the leather and part leather

Questions to deepen thinking

TEACHER'S GUIDE ANALYZING NEWSPAPERS

Guide students with the sample questions as they respond to the primary source. Encourage them to go back and forth between the columns; there is no correct order.

OBSERVE

Ask students to identify and note details.

Sample Questions:

Describe what you see • What do you notice first?
• What text do you notice first? • What do you see other than news articles? • How is the text and other information arranged on the page? • What details indicate when this was published? • What details suggest where this was published?

REFLECT

Encourage students to generate and test hypotheses about the source.

Who do you think was the audience for this publication? • What can you tell about what was important at the time and place of publication? • What can you tell about the point of view of the people who produced this? • How would this be different if produced today? • How would this be the same?

QUESTION

Invite students to ask questions that lead to more observations and reflections.

What do you wonder about... who? • what? • when? • where? • why? • how?

FURTHER INVESTIGATION

Help students to identify questions appropriate for further investigation, and to develop a research strategy for finding answers.

Sample Question: What more do you want to know, and how can you find out?

A few follow-up activity ideas:

Beginning

Read one article without its headline. Write a headline for the article. Compare this to the original headline.

Intermediate

Look at individual stories from a newspaper front page. Which is the most important? Why do you say that? How would you organize the stories on the page? What factors might explain any differences between your version and the original?

Advanced

Choose one news item. Find another item on the same topic published on a different day, in a different place, or both. Compare the coverage of the same topic in the two news items. What is different? What is the same? What are possible explanations for the differences?

For further investigation...

Several passages in the 1896 article make me want to learn more.

- Horseless carriages are described as running by electricity and gasoline.
 - What are the differences between these two?
 - Are there advantages to one over the other?
- The article says that streetcars were introduced 12 years earlier (1884?). There is a lot of writing about the interaction of the horses and the horseless carriage.
 - I wonder how the horseless carriage interacts on a street with streetcars?
 - Could horseless carriages at this time carry a large number of people like streetcars could?

One of the most interesting phases of the lawless episode of last year the murder of the negro by the whites, which has been the subject of the trial, was the fact that the jury was selected within an hour after the charges were made against the men.

At the hearing of the witness, the jury was asked to give their view of the case, and the jury was asked to give their view of the case.

Anderson Intelligencer, Anderson Daily Intelligencer and the Intelligencer

The Anderson Intelligencer (1860-1917), a weekly newspaper "devoted to politics, literature, news, morals, agriculture, science, and art," reported on local, national, and statewide events for the residents of rural Anderson County, in the Upstate region of South Carolina, for over fifty years. The first issue appeared on Tuesday, August 14, 1860. In it, editors and publishers James A. Hoyt and John C.C. Featherstone declared that "in our prospectus we announced that we would conduct our paper independent of all parties, factions, or cliques...we are strictly states rights in our constructions of the Constitution," at once a contradiction in terms and telling evidence of the ideological and political divisions between Northerners and Southerners in the tense years leading up to the Civil War.

Throughout its existence, the Anderson Intelligencer reflected on the economic and political forces transforming Anderson County. Articles titled "Grand ovation to Gov. Hampton!" (April 5, 1877) and "Our political deliverance" (April 12, 1877), both references to former Confederate Army General Wade Hampton, convey the
