

ONLY THE VICE AND LIQUOR INTERESTS, ULTRA CONSERVATIVES AND FEARFUL POLITICIANS ARE OPPOSED TO WOMAN SUFFRAGE, NATIONAL CONGRESSIONAL ORGANIZER DECLARES HERE

Mrs. E. St. Clair Thompson Wins Enthusiastic Applause From Large Audience at Old Palace Last Night; Mrs. Rupert F. Asplund and Miss Aurora Lucero Also Made Addresses; Women to Call On Senator Catron Thursday

"There are 8,000,000 women today working in this country and many of them are receiving wages that are too low to permit them to live properly. I defy any woman to work in a large city for $6 a week and keep honest; she would starve. We ask the ballot in order to assist in making good laws and thus help the mothers and the children of this country."

In these ringing words Mrs. E. St. Clair Thompson, national organizer for the Congressional Union for Women's Suffrage, aroused the enthusiasm of a large audience composed of women and a few men at the Old Palace last night.

When a vote was taken on the proposed Susan B. Anthony amendment, granting the ballot to women, there was not a dissenting voice.

Mrs. Kate Hall presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. An interesting feature of the gathering—one that was comparatively unique in Santa Fe—was the presence of young ladies as ushers. They wore the suffrage colors of yellow, purple and white in a broad band of silk across their shoulders. Back of the speakers' platform was the huge sign which read:

"We Demand an Amendment to the United States Constitution Enfranchising Women."

Mrs. Thompson's address, which was the last on the program, was free from out and dried arguments. It sounded spontaneous and was delivered in a happy vein. Some of her striking sentences were the following:

"I have heard some women say they have not time to vote, but I reply, no mother has the right to neglect her interest in politics when we know very well that we are ruled to day by politics."

In Chicago women worked fifteen years to get a proper system of collecting garbage and the garbage can became known as "a cast iron receptacle surrounded by politics." Today, when women vote in Chicago, instead of paying $4,000 a month to have the garbage collected, the city is receiving half that sum from the contractor who collects it.

"I believe the children in New Mexico at the age of twelve, are allowed to work, regardless of the hours or the wages they receive. I ask if there is not need of a new law?"

"The old days when woman was content to stay at home and crochet have passed. Today women by the millions are earning their own living and they must see to it that the wages they receive are sufficient to maintain their respectability."

"Our duty at present is to strive to pass better laws. We are seeking of few of us ever hold office—but we wish to help the good men who are striving to make good laws."

"The Congressional Union was organized in Washington in 1913 by young college women, and I may add, that the most generous donors to the suffrage cause are the women of Washington who will never be able to vote; they will merely share the happiness which is bound to follow the granting of equal suffrage."

"There is great opposition to equal suffrage. It comes from the vice districts, the liquor interests which have lots of money, the conservative element conspicuous by its love for inaction, and certain politicians who fear they will be replaced in office by better men.

"Out of thirty states where the ballot has been fought we have won twelve and in Illinois we have partial suffrage. Wyoming was the first, and in 1869 said, 'We will stay out of the union a hundred years if necessary rather than enter it without our women.'"

"The president has said the matter should be left to the individual states but there is not a question more federal than this one."

"There are women opponents of equal suffrage; we do not despise these opponents, for if you know women, you know that opposition merely makes them work harder for their cause."

"One of the speakers in congress opposing woman suffrage declared that woman should stay at the fire-side, but in this day we have stoum radiators which are not particularly attractive to look at."

Prolonged applause greeted Mrs. Thompson's address, which was punctuated with ripples of laughter.

The two speakers preceding her were Mrs. Rupert F. Asplund and Miss Aurora Lucero.

In her address, Mrs. Asplund delivered sledge-hammer blows against the old argument that it is dangerous to give woman the ballot for fear she will misuse it. She compared woman's present dilemma to the woman who had a garden but who was not allowed to work in it for fear she would hurt herself with the garden implements. Mrs. Asplund wound up with an appeal for congressional action which she pointed out, is the only feasible solution of the question.

Miss Lucero's address was delivered in Spanish, and in it she pointed out the importance of women taking an interest in politics in an age when politics must enter into the passage of laws affecting the home. At the conclusion of her speech, Mrs. Thompson remarked that she considered it almost a pity that the Spanish children of New Mexico have to learn English when their mother tongue is so mellifluous.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Thompson announced that all of the enthusiasts in the cause of suffrage will visit United States Senator T. B. Catron, at his home at 3 p. m. Thursday, to ask him to help the cause in congress.

BLUE SATIN AND BEAVER

Severe in line and almost guileless of trimming is this suit of navy blue satin. The straight coat closes on the left without buttons or trimming, merely a narrow self-piping being used as finish. A wide flat belt confines the coat about the hips and ties on the left in stiff flaring loops. Below this the coat-skirt flares wide, the bottom line dipping at the sides. The bottom edge of coat is trimmed with beaver; the neck banded with the same. Only a small portion of the skirt shows below the coat and this is not very wide.
